Operator
Comment:

Rule 204 states that the Director has the right at all reasonable times to go upon and inspect any Oil and Gas Location, Oil and Gas Facility, disposal facility, or transporter facility, and any associated records, for the purpose of making any investigation or conducting any tests to ascertain compliance with the provisions of the Act or the Commission's Rules or any special Field rules. Any findings of a Commission Rule violation will be reported to the Commission.

The Statement of Basis and Purpose for Rule 204 states: "the Maralex Court noted with approval that 'Rule 204 imposes a reasonableness requirement that circumscribes COGCC's authority to conduct random inspections.' Id. at 665. Consistent with the Maralex Court's decision, the Commission maintained the reasonableness requirement in Rule 204, and did not make any substantial changes to Rule 204 that would impact the Maralex Court's decision about the constitutionality of Rule 204. Accordingly, the Commission determined that the revised version of Rule 204 remains constitutional and consistent with the Colorado Court of Appeals' decision in Maralex.

The subject Inspection improperly imposes an absolute accessibility requirement under Rule 204 and does not acknowledge the plain language of Rule 204 that states that the right to inspect is subject to a reasonableness requirement. Caerus will provide access for inspections upon reasonable notice and at reasonable times during winter months when snow conditions limit access to sites via a snowmobile. Caerus maintains that such notice and coordination efforts are reasonable and adhere to the plain language and intent of Rule 204.
