Operator Comment: TEP set a live animal trap behind this separator at this location to catch and relocate ground squirrels and/or pack rats that are eating wiring and insulation inside the separator. TEP is humanely controlling pests that are damaging our equipment. Therefore, this live trap is a tool that is currently being used and is needed to protect critical oil and gas equipment. Rule 606 does not prohibit the use of such traps when they are being used in direct support of protecting our equipment. The live trap does not interfere with site operations and does not pose a safety hazard to personnel. It is intended to capture and relocate nuisance pests that destroy / damage oil and gas equipment. This corrective action has been addressed.
